How the case may be in this Assembly ast Newark we do not know; but its Assembly last year, at Peorts, had a decided majority of anti-clavery members. Yet they were largely of the younger man, while the D. D.'s and stronger man were quite generally afraid to agitate any matter deemed "political." They yet adhered to the old policy of keeping still; being infaid of agitation in the churches of the border States, which were atrough; represented. It was runnered last evening that General Sheridan had again out the Fradericksburgers of Stekmond ruiroud, and that this was the reason which compelled Leas to retreat But it seems to me that there would have been more cause for Lee's retreat from Gianquellorsville and Spottsylvania on the occasion of the former descent on the road, than there can be now. Benides, Lee obtains probably the principal portion of his supplies by the Virginia Central ruilroad via Gordonwille, and this read mas not vet bern injured.

It is more probable that like the retreated on account of the feas of Genaris fanks movement, and for the purpose of being nearer. Its base, and also to get all the armies in Richmond and vicinity, within more closely co-operating distances of seah other. Thus the nearer he gets to Richmond—unless he allows Grant's left with Buller—the shorter his lines of communication with his co-operating with bulled the shorter his lines of communication with his co-operating with both Buther and Hunter, and place Lee, within so much hearer co-operating distance of the fascer upposed to them. Thus Gen. Grant's advance to the North Anna will alve him o much further from co-operating with both Buther and Hunter, and place Lee, within so much hearer co-operating distance of the fascer upposed to them. Be now railroad communication to Fleundon, in the valley, and of course free-rullroad communication to Fleundon, in the valley, and of course free-rullroad communication with the arms meaning Gen. The Danville And Richmond mattheon. The destruction of the Richmond and Potersburg railroad by tien. Eatter, left the rebells but one other dr. ct line of railroad with the South, viz. the Richmond and Danville railroad, but to make this 4 through road, dt. ought to be completed to Greensbootough. North Carollan. This, however, has not yet been done. The reboles say it is to be completed by the fourth of July. But then the bridge on this road across the Appearantle River (called Grant's Bridge) has been destroyed, thus rendering the road unit for use. The rebies will perhaps repair the damage to the Pelersburg road, now that they have driven Gen Butler to his intreachments. It is a necessity to them to have this road, on account of its supplying them not only with provisions, but reinforcements for jor their armies in Virginia.

THE ALARY-MILL IN THE CONFEDURACE ON CONSIST MONDAY, May 0, 1864. The House convends a tools, and was salled to order by Speaker Rocock. Frayer by Rev. Dr. Duncan. Mr. Echols, of Georgis, introduced a joint preamble and resolution of thanks to General Robert E. Les, his officers and men, engaged in the defense of Richmond, for the renwed assurance of their prowess and devotion.

Mr. Echols moved to suspend the rules and put the resolution upon its passage. Referred to the Committee on Milliary Affairs.

At this stage of the proceedings the notes of the alarm-boll penetrated the chamber, whereupon Mr. Rogers, of Florids, submitted a solemn resolution, that the members are whereast of the military authorities.

A reference to the Milliary Committee of Richmond, and teader their services to the milliary authorities.

But this is not Symmur's manner; it is not prescribed by the school of taste in which he was brought up; and since his captivity he has omitted an opportunity of creating effect, and making an impression. It was the fortune of these two Brigadiers to be first marched into Orange Court House, with about 1,30, other prisoners.

They were halted opposite the railing which included the Court House, but while Shaler stood in a sufficiently natural smanner, and with apparent unconcern, the other furnished amanement is the few speciators by his sindled attitudes and highly claborate glances. There are consumating drances and obstacles thrown in the wiy hy men who ought to know better; and measures all essential to the preservation of the country are loaded down, and their passage blocked by men who ought to be siraining a every nerve, and ming all their powers to put them through. Partiasm plots, solitals ends, and corrupt combinations are all working together to hinder and thwart the legislation absolutely essential to the enterty of the nation. Honorable members have their eres wide open to all blunders and mistakes of the army, and their mouths overflow with threatings and rebukes against them. But they seem to be as blind as though born so to their own grievous neglects.

The people look upon the apectacle of its chosen representatives thus backward, lesitating, incompetent, and corrupt, with icellags of indignation deeper than can be expressed. There is every disposition to give Congress all the time needed for proper deliberation, and to maintre wise and sound measures of legislation. There is no call for rash blundering and foolish action; but there is a demand that Congress go to work in carriest to perfect the necessary legislation to furnish supplies, ample and prompt, of both men and means. The country is sick at heart of these unending delays, these ceaseless shifts and expedients to avoid action, this constant struggle for personal gains, and unending constroversy and wranging for pure

SKULKING.

Let nobody feel at all slarmed because a few men were skulkers from the battle said. There never was any considerable battle yet where there were not such. We are inclined to believe that in no battles since the warbegun, have they been so few considering the numbers engaged and the length of the fight, are of late on the Po. At Stone River and at very crisis of the battle. That they should number some hundreds, or even thousands, at having caught themselves in being scared We were told of a regiment at Shiloh which ored for personal reasons, often general and statistical, stiftom or never vivid, descriptive, and of a character to make or fix the regulation of those engaged in them. The people have the right to know immediately, how their builties are fought, by whom their victories are won, and who is reasonable for the first that Bherman fought a fine builties are fought, by whom their victories are won, and who is reasonable for the feet that Bherman fought a fine builties on the left, we are not grateful that we are prevented from knowing it until the Shi.

The natite appears to have required and engaged sherman's entire force, and is ample proof that J. E. Johnston is considerable attempth, is in Sherman's front. Our loss amounted to five thomsand in killed and wounded.
